The cold is by no mounts so insupportable as is supposed. We passed from heated cabin at 30 ° above zero to 47 ° Lelos zero in the open air without inconvenience, much higher degree of cold becomes, however insufferable if there is wind. grees below zero a steam, as if from a boiling kettle, rises from the water. At once frozen by the wind, it falls into a fine powder. This phenomenon is called sex-smoke. At fort degrees the snow and human bodies als smoke, which smoke at once changes into m lions of tiny particles, like needles of i which fill the air and make a light continue noise, like the rustle of a stiff silk. At this temperature the trunks of trees burst with a lend report, the rouse freak up, and the earth opens and vomits smoking water. Knives break in cutting butter. Cigars go on by contract with the ice ou the beard. To talk is fatiguing. At night the cyclids are covered with a crust of ice which must be careful removed before one can open thom. The leading geographers assert that Arctic exploration is of immense value to the world, both in its scientific and in its commercial aspects. They say that winds, tides, termstrial magnetism, meteorology and other important phenomena cannot be thoroughly investigated except under many different conditions of temperature and locality. Among many triumphs of Arctic research they mention the fixing of the position of the true magnetic by Ross, the finding of a simple mean keeping the needle pointing to the true in high latitudes, the discovery of the that have befallen some exploring parties, less of life has been small. About three cent, of the Arctic explorers have died in the course of their work—not a large proportic when compared with the mortality amon African explorers. -[New York Sun.

The stones for engagement rings are thus regarded in the great world which occupies itself with such small matters of taste and superstition: The diament of course is good all the year round. If it is sufficiently pure all the year round. If it is sufficiently pur it will warn the wearer of the treachery of his beloved object by breaking at the least blow of steel. The pearl is fashionable and also preferred by ideal peetic lovers, but it has rightful secret influence impelling to treachery or death. The ruby by its color or brilliancy is the image of eternal flame, and is the bes-possible over. The samplers means to depossible omen. The sapplier means tender-ness and truth. In Poland the stones are chosen according to the menth in which the engagement takes place. The ruby for July the pearl for May, the sapphire for January For March the turquoise, which will turn green upon the inconsistency of the giver. The emerald for June is for fidelity, and Russians always expect to have one emerald among the wedding gifts from the husband, as it is the omen of certain happiness.

The great fity-ton hammer in Krupp's works at Essen, gained its name, "Unser Fritz," and the inscription it bears, "Fritz, let fly," in the following manner: When, in 1877, the Emperor William visited Essen, this steam-hammer attracted his attention. Krupp presented him to the machinist, Fritz, who he said, handled the hammer with such nicety and reserving and traction in the said to be said. nd precision, as not to injure or touch an ob watch on the point indicated, and beckened to precious object, but Krupp urged him on by saying, "Fritz, let fly!" Down came the ham-mer and the watch remained untouched. The Emperor gave it to the muchinist as a souvenir, and Krupp added 1,000 marks to the present.
